

Neighborhood Academy Training of Trainers Concept Paper

Introduction and Definition

ICA's Neighborhood Academy program is designed to be sustainable through passing on training skills and curriculum to graduates from the program who show an aptitude for training and facilitating, and an interest in preparing more members of their community to affect change. Given participants' limited time to devote to fully preparing and understanding the dynamics involved in training people in facilitation methods and local community development theory, it is felt that an in-depth Training of Trainers program would assist and strengthen their ability to deliver the program.

Relationship to Current Programs or Literature

The Neighborhood Academy is a 40 hour program designed to equip participants with tools for and skill in leading groups in a non-hierarchical manner, and to provide them with knowledge of the resources available in their community and the best way to utilize them to affect change. The program has been completed in ten communities and was often sponsored by a local school as a means to get more parents involved in decision making. In Playing Their Parts: What Parents and Teachers Really Mean by Parental Involvement, a report produced by Public Agenda in 1998, only 36% of parents surveyed said they would feel very comfortable helping to decide how to spend their school's money and only 19% of parents had actually done so. In comparison, 91% of parents said they would feel comfortable helping with school events like a career day or book sale. The Neighborhood Academy program is designed to respond to this need that parents and other community members feel they have to develop skills to be able to make decisions about their community. The program provides community members with the means to gain knowledge about their neighborhood and learn how to facilitate decision making processes. By encouraging and assisting local people to act as trainers, it is hoped that connections between community members will be fostered and that more people will feel encouraged to participate.

Goals and Objectives

Goal A: To increase the number of community members who feel confident in training the Neighborhood Academy program

Objective 1: To train a minimum of ten people from local communities in Arizona and California through the Neighborhood Academy Training of Trainers (NA ToT) Program

Objective 2: To provide the opportunity for each participant to demonstrate and practice training at least one ToP® Group Facilitation Method

Objective 3: To train participants in general course set up including suitable space arrangements, group dynamics and timekeeping

Goal B: To strengthen participants' skills in training and facilitating groups.

Objective 1: To give participants insights into group dynamics including how to work with youth, adults and people from different cultures

Objective 2: To train participants in what it takes to be a competent facilitator and to recognize good facilitator style

Objective 3: To provide participants with information on different learning styles and how to adapt their training to accommodate these styles

Goal C: To expand participants' knowledge of local community development theory

Objective 1: To provide participants with information about Community Youth Development theory and practice

Objective 2: To provide participants with information about the theory and practice of Sustainable Community Development

Objective 3: To provide participants with the tools to train others in mapping and gridding their community

Objective 4: To provide participants with the tools to train others in local economic, social, cultural and political development

Need for and significance of the project

Participants in the Neighborhood Academy usually graduate from the program eager to recommend it to their neighbors, yet often there are insufficient funds to build on the momentum and repeat it within a short time period. By training local people as trainers, the Neighborhood Academy program can be replicated at reduced cost to the sponsoring organization and so become a sustainable factor in the community's development of local leaders.

Outcomes from the Neighborhood Academy Training of Trainers program will include:

Outcome A: An increase in the number of community members who feel confident in training the Neighborhood Academy program

Outcome B: The skill set of these local trainers in training and facilitating groups is expanded and improved.

Outcome C: Participants' knowledge of local community development theory expands and improves.

Procedures to be used to accomplish the objectives

To achieve the proposed objectives, the following steps will be taken:

Step 1: Recruitment

This Concept paper will be circulated among all current trainers of the Neighborhood Academy program for feedback. The ICA NA ToT design team will then spend three days in late April finalizing the curriculum and list of potential participants. Participants will then be invited to attend the training and appropriate dates will be proposed and confirmed by participants.

Step 2: Curriculum design

All members of the NA ToT design team will contribute to writing and/or translating the NA ToT curriculum. This includes completing procedures for trainers and creating all handouts to be included in the NA ToT Participant manual. One member of the team will be responsible for collating and editing these pieces and for producing the NA ToT participant manual and an accompanying NA ToT Trainers manual.

Step 3: NA ToT

Three days prior to the NA ToT, all members of the NA ToT training team will gather in Phoenix to prepare for the program. The proposed curriculum will then be implemented.

Step 4: Evaluation

Prior to the NA ToT, all participants will be required to complete an evaluation form rating their skill level in training the Neighborhood Academy. At the end of the NA ToT participants will then rate changes in their skill level and evaluate both the curriculum and training of the NA ToT. Upon completion of their training a subsequent Neighborhood Academy, all participants in the NA ToT will again rate their skill level in training the program and evaluate the training they received.

Typically community members leave programs with a new set of skills, yet it is unusual for those same members to be provided with the opportunity to train others in obtaining those skills. By providing graduates from the Neighborhood Academy program with this opportunity program delivery will become more sustainable as it will be less dependant on financial resources, more people in the neighborhood will be trained as local leaders, and community trainers will increase their personal skill set. The same training could be provided on a one-on-one technical assistance basis. However, training a number of community leaders at the same time fosters interchange between neighborhoods and is more time and therefore cost effective. In the future ICA hopes that the NA ToT will be offered on an annual basis, both to prepare community members as trainers and as a refresher for more experienced trainers. This will also enable ICA to guard the quality of NA curriculum delivery.

So ... last week you practiced being a facilitator, this evening you will be practicing to be a trainer, of the focus conversation method. Review agenda for the night, and move into the opening Conversation.

Keep in mind that being a facilitator is very different then being a trainer, can anyone tell us why is it different?

HINTS & TIPS

- What worked particularly well?
- Where were the participants particularly engaged?
- What was critical for this session when you ran it?
- What didn't go well?
- What could be done differently next time?
