Through the Local Church Project, grassroots people expend their lives to design comprehensive structures that will care for all men. As they do so, the local church becomes visibly manifest in our times as the redemptive activity it was commissioned to be: the body of Christ, the hope of the world.

But what lies ahead now is like the Long March. The Long March can only happen when you know where you are going and when you are clear about the price of going there. Then it becomes a Long March. And then you and I have to decide all over again tonight and this month, whether we are going on the Long March, knowing that it is not for five years or ten, but for twenty long years.
