EMPOWERING TODAY'S WOMEN FOR FULL PARTICIPATION

An old Chinese proverb states, "Women hold up half of the sky". This modern world of instant crisis and possibility needs the full creative gifts of all its citizens. Women are questioning the traditional roles assigned them in light of societies demands to participate in all aspects of life. These demands have created the crisis of "the Superwoman" highlighting a need for support systems in society to enable the woman in her multiple roles.

The Global Women's Forum focuses upon the new human partnership and the awakening of female collegiality. This one day seminar emphasizes planning methods, broadened operating contexts, effective corporate teamwork and support connections.

Women from Chicago hosted a North American conference on Women and the Future.

In December, one hundred and thirty women from across the United States and Canada gathered in Chicago at the ICA International Training Center. They spent three intensive days together looking at the issues and demands facing women in the coming decade. They identified nearly three hundred issues confronting women today. From these, twelve major issues were identified. The conference ended with the creation of comprehensive proposals and strategies for women on this continent for the next year. These proposals are intended to:
